Sequential Day-Night Tests The Sequential Day-Night Tests (SNDT) is a number series contest, announced at the 2013 World Mind Sports Games held at the Palace of Sports in Astana, Kazakhstan. The tests are composed of a number of divisions, referred to as "Grades". The competition tests a player's ability to judge different stages of the match as it changes through the day. The grade test is a series of handball tournaments that are played over two days, with 10 different rounds. The final grade is a standalone tournament of the players' abilities to know when the match is won. Grade 1 In the grade 1 division, the players are tested on 6 different handball skills, two from each of five categories: The Catastrophe: Each of the five players plays four games. Players receive negative scores when they lose, for example, 5-0, and they receive positive scores when they win, for example, 5-0. The Chameleon: Players are tested on six different handball skills, three from each of two categories: Arm Speed: The player is required to jump quickly and sprint by passing a ball. Handball Sense: The player has to judge where to shoot a ball when it is next to his/her hand. The Pyrrhic Victory: Players are required to determine whether the ball has crossed a line on the goal line or not. In the end, only two goals of five are counted. The Titan: A player is required to hit the ball with his/her hand into a goal 10 metres from where it has touched the playing field. The Umpire: A player is
