In compliance with Copyright Law regulations, I have attempted to link the Title and Author of this software to the owner of the title/copyright. I have also obtained a copy of the license. The problem is that I don't actually own the title or the copyright, and I know that my university is not ok with the use of this software. Therefore, I'm trying to make a free version that may be distributed (if the software and the title and copyright are ok) with the hope that maybe one of these days my university will realize that they are wrong. I have developed the whole software using the free licence of the university (which is generally ok for my program), but I don't know how to make a free version of it. Can anyone tell me how to make a free version of the software? EDIT: I don't want to distribute the software with the university licence A: You can't create a free version. Either you are free to use, or not. I'm assuming you have or are about to have a copyright issue? If you really want a free version, you need to find an organisation (a charity) which will fund you to develop it. Allergic reactions to carbaryl, a carbamate insecticide. The purpose of this study was to determine the incidence of allergic reactions to carbaryl (Carbaryl, N, N-dimethyl-2-phenyl ethyl ammonium acetate, C8H14N+ ++CH2COO-) in our patient population. Specifically, we determined the incidence of the allergic reactions to carbaryl in our patient population, the incidence of adverse reactions to traditional insecticides, and the incidence of insect repellency with a combination of carbaryl and DEET (N, N-diethyl-3-methylbenzamide). To determine the incidence of adverse reactions to traditional insecticides, we contacted the Division of Pediatric Emergency Medicine at the University of Colorado Health Sciences Center, School of Medicine, and also the Poison Control Center of the Denver Metro Health District. For the determination of the incidence of insect repellency with a combination of carbaryl and DEET, we conducted a nationwide survey of Emergency Physicians and Emergency Nurses. The survey instruments included two questionnaires: 1) a consumer survey, and 2) a questionnaire regarding the possible mechanisms of action of insect repellents. The consumer survey was a 24-item, cross-sectional survey 6d1f23a050
